

MEMBER PORTAL: The engine that drives ArtFindr.

This is where existing members can login or update their accounts, and where new members can join. Mandatory fields include:

- First name
- Last name
- Password
- Confirm password
- Email (for internal use only)
- Member bio (250 words max)
- Image (max size?)

The user also has the option of entering additional data, which will be used in future iterations of ArtFindr: to build out our user gallery, social interactivity, and the marketplace. Optional fields include:

- Social media URLs (Instagram, Twitter, Instagram, Facebook, Dribble, LinkedIn, Etsy)
- User website
- Phone number

Also optional are two radio-button menus. One asks user to select primary medium

USER ACCOUNT page uses same basic template as registration panel. Either a standalone page or returns to member portal.

- The Artchive (running page) is free and open to the public. It includes the following features:
 - Scroll-like UI page design
 - prominent logo with CSS animation
 - member portal link
 - curated slide show of current events
 - calendar of weekly events (curated for VJ, scraped from local media for V2)
 - featured artist/institution bio poems (curated) w/ pop-up call to join

The diagram illustrates a website layout for a 'MEMBER PORTAL'. The layout is divided into several sections:

- Top Navigation Bar: Contains a logo placeholder, a 'MEMBER PORTAL' title, and a 'To be port-coded' label.
- Main Content Area:
 - Featured member/institution: A section with two large placeholder boxes for member logos and names. Each box has a 'To be port-coded' label.
 - SCHEDULED EVENTS WINDOW: A section on the right side of the main content area, listing events for Friday, Saturday, and Sunday. Each event listing has a 'To be port-coded' label.
- Footer: A section at the bottom of the page with a 'To be port-coded' label.

The diagram uses various shapes and colors to represent different elements: rectangles for text and labels, circles for logos, and a yellow background for the 'MEMBER PORTAL' title. A red arrow points to the 'MEMBER PORTAL' title.
